Team Bonding Games & Activities

Ultimately, the goal of the morning mingle is to create a space where everyone feels comfortable and connected before diving into the workday. Mixing lighthearted activities with casual conversation fosters an environment of collaboration and strengthens relationships within the team.

Conversation Starter: people draw a random question to ask someone. Questions could be light-hearted, like "What's your favorite vacation destination?" or "If you could have dinner with any historical figure, who would it be?" We can craft the questions or have your team submit questions prior to the event.

Two Truth's and a Lie: A quick and easy icebreaker where each person shares three statements about themselves—two true and one false. The rest of the team guesses which one is the lie. Fun way to learn quirky facts about colleagues and build camaraderie.

This or That Game: Set up a quick-fire "This or That" game where you present two choices (e.g., "coffee or tea?", "mountains or beach?", "morning person or night owl?"). People pick their answer by raising hands or moving to different sides of the room.

Flash Mingle: Arrange short 3-5 minute one-on-one chats between team members. Every few minutes, ring a bell or make an announcement to move to the next person. Helps people connect who might not usually work together and allows for a quick, meaningful exchange of ideas or personal stories.

We have lots of other ideas, too!

INTERACTIVE BONDING EXPERIENCES with CHARCUTERIE

Cheese and charcuterie boards have surged in popularity in recent years, becoming a staple at social gatherings, parties, and even casual get-togethers. Their appeal lies in their versatility, offering an array of flavors, textures, and colors that cater to various tastes and dietary preferences. These boards often feature an artful assortment of cheeses, cured meats, fruits, nuts, crackers, and spreads, allowing for endless customization.

Build a Cheese & Charcuterie Board

A cheese and charcuterie board-building activity is a fun and interactive way to bring people together while exploring creativity and culinary tastes. Participants can be guided through the process of assembling their own boards, selecting from an array of cheeses, cured meats, fresh fruits, nuts, crackers, and spreads. The activity encourages collaboration as guests share (and nibble on) their favorite flavor combinations and work together to create visually stunning, personalized boards or a grazing station to be enjoyed at the end of the activity with cocktails and conversation.

INTERACTIVE BONDING EXPERIENCES with FLOWERS

Floral arranging is a creative and hands-on team bonding activity that combines art, nature, and teamwork. It encourages communication, collaboration, and a bit of fun, all while allowing team members to relax and enjoy the process. Our resident floral designer will demonstrate basic techniques for cutting stems, arranging flowers, and creating balanced designs.

Floral Arrangement "Speed Round"

Teams or individuals must complete a floral arrangement within a specific time limit. The time pressure adds excitement and encourages quick thinking, while also helping everyone stay engaged. Team members can either take them home or have donated to a local nursing home or hospice care.

Floral Arrangement Relay

Each team must create a floral arrangement. For each round, one person from the team does one step of the arrangement (e.g., trimming the stems, adding flowers, arranging them in a vase), and then passes it off to the next person. The last team to finish with the best-looking arrangement wins.
